1. What went well:

- The team successfully completed all of the sprint goals that were set at the beginning of the sprint. This was a testament to the team's hard work and dedication.
- The team members worked well together and supported each other throughout the sprint. This was essential for the team's success.

2. What went wrong:

- We encountered situations where tasks turned out to be more intricate than initially anticipated. This occasionally led to delays and revisions, highlighting the importance of thorough planning and estimation.
- There were a few instances of communication breakdowns between team members. This led to some confusion and frustration.

3. What lessons we could learn:

- It is important to accurately estimate the time required for each task before the sprint begins. This can help to avoid delays and challenges.
