1. What went well:

- Everyone in our group is responsible for their work and is very enthusiastic about supporting each other in finding answers
- Learning and applying programming languages such as HTML & CSS, Javascript to program the front-end interface goes quite smoothly. Although there is a lot of confusion, everyone can find a way to get used to it.

2. What went wrong:

- During the process of designing and programming the front-end interfaces, due to inconsistencies in fonts and colors, we encountered many difficulties in adjusting them accordingly.

3. What lessons we could learn:

- Due to inconsistency in working specifications, it causes some delay in completing the task. In the next working sprints, we will learn from experience and try to discuss everything clearly before starting work.
